

I came to the school in 1999 so have been working here for 15 years. During that time I have had a number of different roles. I was seconded by the local authority for several years to work in other schools, developing the curriculum and the arts. This gave me the opportunity to see how other schools worked and how best to work with schools to bring about change. I have been based back in Manor full time since Easter 2012 although other schools still buy me in to support their development. I have through all my time here worked with every year group in the school at least twice in a year, so have a good understanding of the curriculum on offer for pupils at Manor.

I became a staff governor at Manor last year because I am keen to ensure that the pupils at Manor have the very best educational opportunities we can provide, to support them in reaching their full potential.
